

NFL Moms Tackle Hunger...Add One

The group of moms will be led by one of the most recognizable “Team Moms” in all sports, Wilma McNabb, mother of Philadelphia Eagles’ quarterback, Donovan McNabb. McNabb came to fame by playing herself in the Campbell’s Chunky soup “Mama’s Boys” advertising campaign and now, as President of the PFPMA, will share her spirit and encouragement with the other moms as they help with the Chunky soup mission of tackling hunger nationwide.

“One of the guiding principals of the PFPMA is to help the less fortunate in our communities and we are honored to partner with organizations like the Campbell Soup Company and Feeding America, who share the same core values,” said McNabb, President of the PFPMA. “No one should ever go hungry, and with the help of our hometown friends, we’re ensuring that people in need in our communities will receive nourishing soups, like Beef with Country Vegetables which is packed with lean meat protein.”

Vicki Escarra, President and CEO of Feeding America said, “We are extremely grateful for the ongoing support of the Campbell Soup Company, the NFL and the PFPMA. We would not be able to continue our effort in feeding more than 25 million hungry people each year, including nearly 9 million children and 3 million seniors, without this type of support.”

Campbell’s Chunky soup and the NFL have been raising awareness about hunger in America since 1997 through its ongoing national campaign, the Campbell’s Chunky/NFL Tackling Hunger® program. Now in its 11th year sponsoring the NFL, Campbell’s Chunky soup continues to remain committed to tackling hunger in America by driving all donations to local Feeding America network members across the country.

Following is a list of the 35 participating PFPMA moms who will take part in the “NFL Moms Tackling Hunger with Chunky Soup” program and their corresponding Feeding America food bank.
